

SELECT THREE JUDGES TO CHECK BALLOT COUNT IN YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK CONTEST; MEET THIS WEEK TO MAKE PLANS

William H. H. Fine, Wilson Black and John Healey Consent to Keep Tabs On the Gigantic Vote Totals Being Piled Up by Popular Young Women

Three judges have been selected to check the ballot count in the Courier-Merchants Yellowstone National Park Tour Contest. Those selected are:

William H. H. Fine, Wilson Black, and John Healey. These three men have kindly consented to act in the capacity of judges and will meet early this week to formulate their plans for future meetings, at which time they will begin counting the votes so as to prevent the work getting too far ahead of them. It is planned to announce the winner of the contest in the Courier on Monday, July 29th. These judges will hold several meetings and will check the vote right up with the tabulation.

The work of checking the votes is a tremendous task, and it is expected that it will greatly increase during the next 10 days. Every effort will be made to keep the daily tabulation as published in the Courier up to within 48 hours of the casting of the ballots. Of course, there may be instances where this will not be possible, due to the large number of votes now being polled.

Postmaster At Uhlertown Resigns; To Close Office

UHLERTOWN, July 15—The Uhlertown postmaster, John Sigafos, has tendered his resignation after 49 years of service.

The local postoffice is to be discontinued after July 31st.

Uhlertown is a canal bank village, opposite Frenchtown, and mail has been handled through the Frenchtown post office by way of the Erwinna star route for over a year.

Beginning August 1, all mail to Uhlertown will be handled through Frenchtown.

LEGISLATORS SEEKING JOBS FOR BACK HOMERS

Have Made Many Promises
Which They Cannot Fulfill

WILL NEVER GET THEM

HARRISBURG, July 15—Democratic members of the Legislature—the "good boys" who took Democratic Administration orders last session regardless of the fact that some of the bills for which they voted would have well nigh bankrupted Pennsylvania—are now seeking the jobs they were promised for folks back home, and for the most part are being turned down.

In competition with the ambitions of Dictaphone Charley Margiotti, "Dave" Lawrence, Guffey's handyman at the Capitol, and others of the Earle Administration who have political aspirations of their own, promises to obedient legislators don't count for much.

"Put them off until after adjournment" was the cry during the session. "Put them off until after the primaries" is the present advice the Governor's office is receiving.

Added to this, there is facing the Democratic members of the Legislature outspoken and growing opposition to the Roosevelt Administration and the New Deal policies, which they enthusiastically sponsored in the Legislature.

The Guffey leadership is fully aware of what is happening. It realizes that it is in for defeat in the Supreme and Superior Court contests in Pennsylvania next November, and it has tried unsuccessfully to make a deal with the Republicans for the election of Barnes, renegade Republican, to the Supreme Court, and the re-election of Judge Jesse E. B. Cunningham, to the Superior Court. Needless to say, the Republicans would have nothing to do with this, but the willingness of the Democratic bosses to deal shows the weakness of their position.

The extent of the revolt against Guffey and Roosevelt in Pennsylvania is to be noted, also, in Congress, where ten Democratic Congressmen defied the President and "Boss" Guffey by voting against the "death sentence" in the utility bill. The viciousness of the Democratic leadership is shown by the fact that their mouthpiece, the Philadelphia Record, is openly urging the defeat of these Congressmen when they come up for re-nomination.

This "death sentence," the Record has decreed, applies to Patrick J. Boland, Scranton; Harry L. Haines, Red Lion; Don Gingery, Clearfield; Charles L. Faddis, Waynesburg; William M. Berlin, Greensburg; Charles N. Crosby, Meadville; William E. Richardson, Reading; Joseph Gray, Spangler, and O. W. Fry, Allentown.

It matters not that these have voted for practically every other recommendation made by Roosevelt, nor that they have unhesitatingly taken Guffey's dictation, even when they knew he was wrong. They offended just once—so, off must go their heads.

This means that the Roosevelt Administration plans to come into ten congressional districts in Pennsylvania and try to defeat ten Democratic Congressmen. It makes confusion twice confused.

Every report reaching the Republican Headquarters is encouraging. Roosevelt's policies have failed to bring the promised prosperity. Roosevelt popularity is on the wane. The Earle Administration has done nothing but pile up debts. It has made good few of its promises. It is at odds with itself. The situation, with respect to legislation is well summed up in the speech of Senator George L. Reed, made recently in Erie, in the course of which he said:

"Four major propositions were proclaimed by the present Democratic administration at Harrisburg, to be their objectives. First, the reduction of the cost of local government; secondly, the reduction of the cost of state government; thirdly, social security and fourthly the reduction of the tax burden. The rehabilitation of industry, so vital to the perpetuity of Pennsylvania's greatness was never within the view of Democratic leadership. The Democratic administration at Harrisburg has signally failed to accomplish its objective."

"The cost of local government has

AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION IN REPORT BEING PREPARED FOR ANNUAL MEETING, CENSURES THE CONDUCT OF ATTORNEYS IN THE HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Report Urges Establishment of Committee to Make Nationwide Survey of Conditions Surrounding Publicity Given to Criminal Trials

By International News Service
LOS ANGELES, July 15—(INS)—Censure of the conduct of attorneys for both the defense and the prosecution at the murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann is voiced in a committee report prepared for the annual American Bar Association meeting here July 15 to 19, it was disclosed today.

An abstract of the report to be read by the Committee on Co-operation Between Press and Bar, made public today, said:

"Leaders of the Bar and the news vending agencies who are sincerely interested in the preservation of American institutions should join forces and consider ways and means for preventing a repetition of such incidents as occurred in the Bruno Hauptmann trial and 'should take steps to minimize the possibility that in the future other lawyers and publicity seekers may feel that a precedent has been established which can be followed with impunity.'"

"The committee suggests that at this time it would be improper to comment on whether or not a fair trial was had by Hauptmann. In reference to the conduct of the trial, however, it has the following to say:

"If the press reports are accurate, the attorneys for the defendant, and the prosecuting attorney as well, took advantage of the situation and by personal interviews given to representatives of the press and by talks over the radio, seemed wholly to disregard all the accepted rules of dignity and ethics with which the profession and the courts have sought to surround the trial of a man for his life."

The report urges establishment of a committee of outstanding lawyers and representatives of International News Service, the Associated Press, United Press and the National and Columbia broadcasting systems to make a nationwide survey of conditions surrounding the publicity given to criminal trials.

"It is our thought," the committee states, "that more substantial results can be accomplished if co-operation between representative leaders of the groups on whom rests responsibility for the creation of a proper attitude toward sensational criminal trials can be procured. This is the duty of the bar, the press and the radio."

While emphasizing it was not criticizing the press, the committee said that to treat a criminal trial as a

Y. M. A. WINS EVENTS AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

Take Junior 4 Singles From Capital Crew; Second in Junior 4 Doubles

WIN JR. TILTING FRAY

Y. M. A. crew, in the Junior 4 singles, won by five lengths over the Washington crew Saturday in the Middle States Division championships in Washington, D. C. Taking the lead at the very start the Y. M. A. crew never at any time during the race had to increase its stroke. The time for this event was 3:47.

For winning the boys received the Potomac Boat Club Trophy, also four gold American Canoe Racing Association medals.

In the Junior four doubles, the Y. M. A. crew took second, losing to the Washington crew. This race was the second fastest of the day. Winning time was 3:22. So close was this race, a second gun could not be fired. Only inches separated the two leading crews. To give an example of the speed of this race, the Cacaw senior four doubles crew, winners of the event for the past three years, covered the same course, winning from Washington in 3:17, only five seconds' difference between a senior and junior crew.

In the tilting contest, Jim Rue on the board, and Fred Bell paddling, won the Junior tilting contest. "Jim" easily disposed of his first opponent, then went into the finals. In the finals "Jim" won from "Bill" Haven, Jr., whose father was second in the senior event, defeating "Al" Bauer and "Dea" Holland. Haven, Jr., was considered the best in the entries, but Rue approached easily and hit Haven, Jr., causing him to jump from his own boat into Rue's.

The Y. M. A. crew will participate in the American Canoe Association National championships to be held on Lake Carnegie, Princeton, N. J., July 21st.

Herbert O. Banes, Jr., Edgely, Dies in Hospital

EDGELY, July 15—Ill six weeks of a heart ailment, Herbert O. Banes, Jr., died in Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, yesterday. He had been receiving treatment at the Philadelphia hospital for several days.

Survivors of the young man, who was 21 years of age, are his wife, Vivian Banes; a baby, six weeks of age; and his parents, Herbert O. Banes, Sr., and Irene VanHorn Banes. The young man was a painter by trade.

The Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church, Bristol, will officiate at the funeral service at the Banes home, here, Wednesday at two p. m. Interment in Bristol Cemetery will be in charge of the H. S. Rue Estate, funeral directors. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

Showers Are Promised For St. Swithin's Day

"Showers today."
This is the weatherman's prediction for St. Swithin's Day, and many are eagerly watching the skies, keeping in mind the age-old belief that rain on this day means 40 consecutive days of wet weather.

With an ideal week-end, highways throughout the area were crowded with those seeking enjoyment; and pleasure parks were reported at capacity. Knowing full well that St. Swithin's Day was at hand, many took advantage of the excellent week-end weather, in the event the 40 days to follow should bring forth rain.

AFRICAN PRINCE TELLS OF UNUSUAL JOURNEY

Search for "American Jesus"
Led Him On 80-Day Trip
Through Jungle

SPEAKS AT W. BRISTOL

Telling of his search for "the American Jesus" whom he had heard a missionary testify for, "Prince Moses" Decameo, eldest son of a tribal chief in Africa, told of his life and conversion to Christianity when he spoke at the morning service in Newport Road Community Chapel yesterday. The story which he is proclaiming day after day was made possible when he vowed to follow the Christ whom he had learned to love, with the result that he stole away from his parents and tribe in the middle of the night, lest he be apprehended, walked for more than 80 days through the African jungle, stowed away on a ship bound for Glasgow, and eventually landed in the United States in 1926.

"Prince Moses," as he is familiarly known, was given the name of Moses by the ship's captain, who gave him aid, and helped him on his way to the great America which he sought, and whose Jesus he has since learned can be found anywhere. He is rightfully a prince, and providing he had remained in his native land and continued to worship the gods of his tribe he would eventually have succeeded his father as ruler of a vast tribe.

The prince, who reached America in 1926, has since that time learned to speak English fairly fluently, and the motive of his life "is to preach the Christ and to praise Him." He told of receiving word that a railroad is being built through the part of the country occupied by his tribe, and of his desire that the country would be saved from worship of false gods, and that more mission schools would result. He plans to return to his native land within a few years and teach his people. "We should all be interested in missionary work," he said. "When Christ saves us He means for us to save somebody else. One of the greatest commissions Christ laid down was 'Go ye therefore into all the world.' You don't have to go abroad. The great story is new, new to me. I never tire to tell the story of Jesus Christ." The one who was born in the African jungle then told of how his countrymen worship gods of wood, the snakes and alligators, and of their chief god, a great image. "There are millions who don't know our God and Jesus Christ." The sacrifices of animals, and sometimes even of human beings is still carried on by the tribes, in order to appease the gods, the congregation was informed.

"Prince Moses" made it plain that he did not come to America to seek money. "I didn't know what money was. I came to find Jesus. I have no work yet, but here's my treasure," he said, as he held up his Bible. "Sometimes I have no beef-steak, no pork-chop, and sometimes no tapioca," he said in his broken English, "but I have this Bible." He compared the "uncouth, indifferent, uneducated way" the people in Africa live and worship, with the life here, and mentioned the fever and other illnesses that those in Africa have to combat. "In my Africa it is two, three times hotter than here. But when you get sick here you have doctor, somebody to watch over you, and give you good medicine. In Africa there is only the medicine man who will lay you out on the hot sand when you have the fever, and say queer words over you." "When I was sick few days ago the doctor came. He wipe off little piece of glass and put it in my mouth, and wouldn't"

New Castle Girl, Missing Since July 4, Found Here

A 15-year old New Castle, Del., girl, missing from her home since July 4th, was taken into custody on Radcliffe street, yesterday morning by chief of police Linford Jones, and this morning returned to her home.

The girl, Frances Thomas, of 5 Grey street, New Castle, was found seated on the steps of the Bracken Post Home, American Legion, and when taken to the municipal building gave a fictitious name and address. Check-ups were made with descriptions of the missing girl which had been sent over the teletype system, and after communicating with New Castle police, local officers finally induced the girl to admit her true identity.

Chief of police Leonard, of New Castle, came here this morning, and took his charge to her home.

500 REPUBLICANS RALLY AT PICNIC IN SOLEBURY TWP.

Speakers Include District
Attorney Eastburn, and
Ralph B. Umsted

R. MOORE PRICE

Dr. John McGill, New Hope,
Presides; Program of Sports Held

SOLEBURY, July 15—One of the most enthusiastic Republican meetings ever held in Bucks county, took place in conjunction with a picnic sponsored by the Republicans of Solebury Township, at Ely's Grove, Saturday afternoon, the affair being attended by 500 Republicans from all parts of Bucks county.

A program of sports was participated in, and at the meeting, several speakers addressed the gathering.

The presiding officer was Dr. John McGill, New Hope, who introduced District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown; and R. Moore Price, New Hope. The third speaker of the day, Ralph B. Umsted, of the Philadelphia bar, was introduced by Harry Blair, a member of the Young Republicans County Committee.

In his brief address District Attorney Eastburn recalled that 50 years ago his father was a candidate for district attorney, which office the younger Eastburn has held for ten years. The speaker told that his father carried the county with a majority of 700 votes, with over 300 coming from Solebury Township. "The time of the primary election is approaching, and we will find there will be many candidates for each office." He reminded the gathering that "Politics is a game, and it is necessary to be a good winner as well as a good loser. When all is over we should all fall in, and forget personalities." Mr. Eastburn was given a rousing reception, and he extended thanks for co-operation given.

In his stirring address Mr. Umsted said that "Not until the leaves fall on the November ground will we know the fate of the Republican party in Bucks County and Pennsylvania; but when this warm July sun is shining on such a gathering as today it takes no imagination to predict an overwhelming victory for the Republican party."

The speaker told the men and women assembled that they are "fighting for the same principles the continental army strove for. They fought with bayonet and bullet; we use ballots. The disastrous election of 1934 was the

Frame Bungalow Guttled By Fire at Croydon Park

CROYDON, July 15—A Croydon couple were made homeless yesterday afternoon when fire gutted their home, and destroyed practically all their furniture.

The conflagration was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lambie, Elm avenue, Bristol Park.

It is stated that the blaze was caused by explosion of a kerosene stove, as Mr. Lambie was filling the same with fuel.

The flames rapidly enveloped the dwelling, a five-room frame bungalow, and when firemen arrived they found the flames had gained great headway. Companies summoned included the Croydon and Bristol Consolidated, and the men worked feverishly in an endeavor to keep the loss down. The fire was brought under control about 20 minutes after the firemen arrived.

The only two in the property at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Lambie.

The occupants, with their furnishings lost, and the place rendered untenable, were forced to seek other quarters for the time being. They are now located at the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Goebig, nearby.

IS DISCHARGED

At a hearing before Justice James Guy in the municipal building this morning, John Elmer, Mifflin and Linden streets, was discharged, it being testified that liquor found on his premises during a raid on July 5th was state liquor store beverage.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PAUSES

Since the eventful day of her descent into the pits of an Ohio coal field, the exploits of Mrs. Roosevelt have been almost totally lacking from the travel news of the day. She has not, we suspect, covered more than ten or fifteen thousand miles in the last month. Probably she has been in no more than half a dozen airplanes, visited less than a score of hospitals and appeared or spoken in public on an average of less than once a day. This is a low ebb in the activities of the First Lady, the more remarkable because it has come at a time when two other members of her sex were achieving prominence of their own for a considerable ability to get over the ground.

Only a few weeks ago there was the flight of Amelia Earhart over the Pacific and, more recently, to Mexico, the latter made the more notable of the bug which got in Miss Earhart's eye. With or without bug, we have not heard of Mrs. Roosevelt flying to Mexico, or across the Pacific either once.

The other female traveler of recent prominence was Mme. Albert LeBrun, wife of the President of France, who came across in that most publicized travel event of the year, the Normandie's maiden voyage. Mme. LeBrun showed herself the equal of our own president's wife, stepping swiftly about the canyons of New York, seeing all the sights and making the return trip home on the Normandie. Mrs. Roosevelt, meanwhile, was relegated to the role of reception committee for the visitor.

These contemporary activities are important to us merely as they emphasize the comparative inactivity of the immensely active Mrs. Roosevelt. Should we view it with alarm? Or may we conclude that even Mrs. Roosevelt's endurance has its limits, and she has found it necessary to pause for breath?

LOADING DISCOURAGED

How to prevent workers on public relief projects from "loading on the job" is a problem to which the Swedes seem to have found a promising answer.

In America and other countries which have adopted this form of relief it has been found that many workers failed to give their whole energies to the job in hand. Knowing that their pay would be forthcoming whether or not they gave a full measure of labor in return, they were inclined to loaf.

The Swedes have evolved a system which is expected to overcome this tendency. The Swedish system is based on payment of a minimum daily wage plus whatever amount a worker can earn under a piece-work arrangement. As an example, on highway construction work the plan contemplates dividing the workers into small groups who will receive pay according to the number of cubic yards of dirt removed. All work, where possible, will be done by hand. The wage rates will conform generally to those prevailing in the parts of the country where the laborers are at work.

The plan seems to be a big improvement over those now being used. Instead of deadening private initiative it will encourage the latter, which is a very valuable feature in any relief undertaking.

This might be the spot in the build-up for an announcement by Duane that he hurt his hand in an exhibition fight.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Jan. 8, 1874. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Week Ending January 8, 1874

Henry Eckert, of Hilltown, was having a little amusement on New Year's Eve, shooting the old year out, when his gun exploded and its contents entered his left hand and injured it to such an extent as to require its amputation.

Mohican Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, of Bristol, assembled a large company at Cabene's Hall, on Monday evening last, and partook of a grand feast. The exercises of the evening commenced by singing the opening ode of the Tribe, and an address by Dr. Potts, who presided, explanatory of the Feast of the Hot Tuck Impanna, which was delivered in his usual bland and suave manner. A glee club from Chester, Delaware County, sang the Welcoming Ode in an effective manner, following which was an eloquent address by William P. Bailey, delivered in his usual happy style. An address was also made by David Mansides on "The Noble Red Man," commemorating his virtues and deploring the rapid extermination of the race. At 9 o'clock the Grand Feast of the Hot Tuck Impanna was announced and Sachem and Sagamore of the Rev. J. C. Hyde, who has been more, Chiefs and Warriors, with their wives or sweethearts, took to the war path and began a slaughter on turkeys, chicken salads, sweetmeats, ice cream, hot coffee, etc. About ninety ladies were seated at the first table. After the repast was over the entire party again repaired to the upper room where they were entertained with some excellent music and interesting speaking until after one o'clock, when a band of Indians, supposed to be Modocs, in war paint and feathers, armed with bows, arrows, tomahawks, etc., rushed upon the scene, and for a few moments quite a lively time ensued, but peace was finally restored without any one being tomahawked.

A party of young men, on New Year's Eve, entered the premises of Daniel Knight, of Hyberry, and amused themselves by shooting at random about the buildings. One load of shot went through a window and broke a mirror on the opposite side of the room. Fortunately no one in the house was injured.

It affords us pleasure to hear of the continued improvement in the health of the Rev. J. C. Hyde, who has been at the water-cure in Florence for the past week. Shortly after going there Mr. Hyde was afflicted with a severe attack of sickness, but is now considered out of danger.

PROSPECTVILLE—Miss Lizzie Farr, of Warminster, has been elected Principal of Horsham Hall school. Miss Parry is an accomplished lady and a most successful teacher. We compliment the people of the vicinity upon the prize they have secured.

The "First Day School" of Friends of Bristol, held a social gathering on New Year's Day, at the house of Cyrus Pierce, where they had been kindly invited. A large tree, beautifully ornamented by its peculiar fruit, occupied and filled one end of the spacious room, making many bright eyes brighter as they beheld its apparently snow-covered branches, to which were suspended the gifts for each scholar with the name attached. At 2 1/2 p. m., more than one hundred children, with their teachers (eleven in number) and many of their elder friends, assembled to enjoy the short exercises. Dr. George Adams, the Superintendent, read a "New Year's Address," encouraging all to make new resolves for a better life at this commencement of a new year.

WARMINSTER—Mr. Charles Gwin died at his residence on Wednesday last, and was buried Sunday afternoon, at Fairview Cemetery, Montgomery county.

The services in connection with the Week of Prayer were commenced by a devotional meeting in the room of the Y. M. C. A., on Monday evening. Tuesday evening services were held in the Presbyterian Church, and last evening in the Methodist Church, and, taking into consideration the storm which has prevailed for the past three days, and the condition of the walking, were very well attended. Tonight there will be services in the Methodist Church, Friday evening in the hall of the Y. M. C. A., and on Saturday evening in the Presbyterian Church.

PROSPECTVILLE—No larger nor more appreciative audience has been assembled in Prospectville Hall for the past year than that which was present on last Wednesday evening to enjoy the proceedings of the Literary Society of this place. The evening was grand in the splendor of moonlight and the condition of the roads was favorable to travel. Fast the fluttering crowd poured in until the house was full, thus furnishing a pleasing testimonial of the favor with which this society is being held in the estimation of the community. The question under discussion was "Resolved, that the best interests of society and the nation demand that the elective franchise be extended to women," which received a due share of attention from all, the interest in the debate being so great that the same subject will be discussed at the next meeting.

let me talk until he took it out. Then he told me I'm too hot, and send to the drug-store for some medicine to cool me off." After showing the contrast in Africa, he said: "Oh, that's darkness. They don't have the light. But, thank God, when I return I will tell my people not to make sacrifices and give the baby and the child to the crocodiles to satisfy the water-god."

The speaker told of the first white men he ever saw, four missionaries who visited the tribe, and under whom he was converted. "We thought those white men had no skin; that absolutely they was big piece of meat walking around. We were all afraid. I'm chief's son, but I'm scared too." He then proceeded to tell of the meeting held in the jungle town, when the white missionary used a chopping block for a pulpit, and 14,000 attended. "My heart make 99 miles an hour when the Lord touched my heart that night," he testified.

"Prince Moses" father had in his immediate village his 18 wives, 45 children, and 700 slaves. "But, my father have tender heart. He don't let anybody harm those missionaries that night."

His pleadings with his father, year after year, to permit the young man to come to America were told of, with no result. Finally the lad set out alone, without telling of his plans. Never having seen a map, and having no education, he and his fellow-men

THE SNOW LEOPARD by Chris Hawthorne

SYNOPSIS

As Dick Bannister, young explorer, emerges from the exclusive Park Avenue residence hotel of his brother, Hod, the body of a man comes hurtling through the air, followed by a snow leopard robe. The man, obviously a servant, had fallen about twenty stories. Shortly after, Dick notices a beautiful girl, standing in the doorway, order her chow to bring the robe to her. Dick's aide, "Bully," fights with the chow for possession of it. When the girl finally retrieves it—in pieces—she hastily runs her fingers over it and exclaims: "The clasp and girdle—gone!" Never had Dick been so attracted by a girl. She is Karen Sire, daughter of the multi-millionaire, Maurice Sire. The police summon Dick to the Sire apartment as a witness. Detective Captain Boyle claims the dead man, a Filipino, was murdered—stabbed in the back. Karen was the only other person in the room when he fell. Maurice Sire telephones that he is flying up from Washington, D. C. Leaving Detective "One-Armed" Toole (who really has two perfectly good arms) on duty. Boyle goes out. When the detective isn't looking, Dick calls Karen's attention to blood in the aquarium. Without a sign of emotion, she invites Toole to have a drink in the next room. While the officer is gone, Dick plunges his arms into the aquarium and draws forth a stiletto, which he thrusts into his pocket. Shortly after, Boyle returns with a policeman and orders Karen searched. The girl slips over to Dick. He feels a tug at his pocket—the stiletto is gone! With the certainty of being searched within the next few minutes, Karen had deliberately relieved him of the weapon. Dick is stunned when nothing is found on Karen. Boyle leaves. Then "One-Armed" Toole compliments Karen on her smooth trick. He had seen everything and felt Karen drop the dagger into his—Toole's—pocket before being searched but had remained silent, for, like Dick, he has a hunch that Karen is innocent.

CHAPTER V

Bannister did not intend to permit the detective to jolly him along, so he walked over to the aquarium and dropped the stiletto back into the water. "Now," he said cheerfully, "the case stands just as it did before our young friend here was his coat sleeve. Matt Boyle will be back again but he won't see anything; that stuff couldn't spot a doughnut in a cup of coffee."

Toole was gazing into the aquarium as he spoke. "So I'm One-Armed Toole, eh?" he muttered, his good humor falling away.

Bannister and Miss Sire waited eagerly for his next words. The detective's persistent reference to himself as "One-Armed" Toole had intrigued them; his two muscular hands were open now and he was clapping them together in a kind of bitter triumph. But no answer to a riddle came. Toole picked up the bits of fur which Bannister had thrown upon the table. "Where's the buckle and belt?" he demanded.

"How did you know about them—the clasp and girdle?" the girl asked faintly.

"Either of you ever hear of the Whipple Syndicate?" Toole parried.

Karen shook her head. "What's their line?" Bannister asked.

"Their line," Toole answered, "is great-grand larceny. The Whipple Syndicate . . . they're supposed to be promoters . . . is out to get this snow leopard robe and the jewels attached to it. They didn't get the robe—did they get the other stuff?"

"The clasp and girdle are gone," Karen answered.

"Rather small pickings for the gigantic Whipple Syndicate," Bannister remarked.

"Not so small as you think," Toole retorted.

"Who, or what, are the Whipples?" Karen asked.

"Oh, just a pair of international crooks—Big Jeff Whipple and his wife, Brenda. You can help me a lot, young lady, by telling me what you know about the leopard robe and the clasp and girdle."

"No harm in that," Bannister said. "Tell him."

"I won't!" Karen replied decisively, "until he tells us why he calls himself 'One-Armed' Toole."

"Matt Boyle hung that name on me," Toole answered scornfully. "About a year ago I made the crack that if I ever collared the Whipples I'd lose my right arm before they got away."

Well, I collared Jeff, all right, but he got away without doing me any more harm than jamming my derby down over my ears. I've been One-Armed Toole ever since, around headquarters. And Matt made a nasty crack about me buying a house out in the Bronx two weeks after Whipple got away."

me one or the Whipple Syndicate wouldn't be after them."

Bannister looked down at the ragged bits of fur, suddenly becoming conscious that his dog, Bully, had plunged him into a frightful mess. The robe was past repair and, in view of the value Toole set upon it, beyond any kind of restitution that he could hope to make. He looked guiltily at Karen. She smiled at him without even a trace of annoyance.

The young geologist smiled back at her, but rather sheepishly. Only a school girl, after all—certainly not more than twenty-one. He tried to appraise her again; she was not a type—individuality spoke in her voice, her marked, fascinating little mannerisms. Not a trace of rouge or powder appeared on that slightly bronzed but delicate skin; her eyes, he thought, were deep blue—no, violet. Anyway, they were beautiful, with lids and lashes untouched by art.

"So you think," Karen said, addressing Toole, "that the Whipples are in possession of the clasp and girdle? Is that why you put the stiletto back in the aquarium? Do you expect the man who killed the poor little Filipino to come back for it to conceal the evidence of his crime?"

The detective nodded. "I expect a person to come for it."

"Why do you stress the word person?" Karen asked, "surely, you are not expecting a woman?"

"Ain't it?"

"You expect a woman to come here for that stiletto?" Bannister demanded. "Do you think anyone would have the hardihood to return here to the twentieth floor, sneak into what now must be known as a carefully guarded house—and do this to recover a weapon that was specially designed to leave no clue?"

"Specially designed," interrupted Toole, "that's what licks 'em all. Special calls on the telephone, special meeting places, special alibis, special witnesses, special lawyers and special bondsmen. All birds of a feather, collar one and you've got a decoy duck. Let the pond be still for a while and the rest of 'em soon settle on the water. Then you let 'em go with both barrels and bag 'em all."

Bannister smiled. "You've tried that on the Whipples before, haven't you?"

Toole glared at him, then softened into a grin as he patted his right coat sleeve. "I don't intend to miff this time," he said. "Matt Boyle was right when he suspected a woman in this case—only he picked the wrong one."

Karen murmured a scarcely audible "Thank you." Her eyes had brightened as she listened to Toole.

Miss Rita Keating, South Langhorne, president of the organization, was in charge of the session. Arrangements were made for the next meeting to be held at Cedar Lake, N. J., when a pic-nic supper and bathing will also be in-cluded in. Plans were made for a social program for the evening of Sep-tember 14th, with members of the 8 'N' 40 and 40 'N' 8 of Bucks and Montgomery Counties, and their guests partici-pating. The affair will be held at the Memorial House, Langhorne. Mrs. Harry Bergbauer was named commit-tee chairman.

Appointed as delegate to the state convention in August at Wilkes-Barre is Mrs. Fred Bryner, Edgely; with Mrs. Leo Riley, Bristol Township, as alternate.

Legislators Seeking Jobs For Back Homers

Not been reduced and no bills were introduced by the administration to further that end. Not even a gesture was made towards reducing bureau-cracy at Harrisburg. When finally, the Achtenman bill arrived in the Senate, containing many amendments to the administration code, not one line could be found therein which looked toward economy, despite the Governor's oft-repeated assertions of his interest in social welfare.

"It was the Democratic administra-tion which made impossible a mini-mum wage for women and children in industry, which made impossible amendments to the Women's Hour law, which stifled every effort to a fair and reasonable effort to improve the Workmen's Compensation act. The administration at Harrisburg pre-ferred that any bill looking toward justice to the workers should be cruci-fied upon the altar of politics, rather than permit any bill which did not have as its main objective the persecu-tion of industry.

"The most brazen attempt of the ad-ministration to further ham-string industry was the so-called Furman bill, called the Industrial Insurance bill; but the term insurance as used in the title was mis-nomer. Under it, labor contributed nothing for the so-called insurance; but as for industry, its sole purpose was to impose a further tax upon every industrial pay-roll.

"But in the field of taxation we best see the evidence of the destructive policies at Washington, sought to be translated in the law at Harrisburg. Since February, Governor Earle pro-posed over two hundred and three millions of dollars of new taxes. A Republican Senate demonstrated it could be reduced by almost one hun-dred million, without suffering to those on relief pay-rolls.

"The Governor called this a 'weak-the-rich' program. But the Republican Senate demonstrated that these taxes in a large measure fell not upon the rich but upon the average citizen al-though overburdened with taxes. Gov-ernor Earle protested his undying op-position to a Pennsylvania 'sales tax' and then proposed practically every special sales-tax of which the mind of man could conceive. Although Gov-ernor Earle is one of the richest men in Pennsylvania, it is interesting to note that the administration tax pro-gram weighs heavily on the average man but there is almost no tax which Governor Earle personally will be compelled to pay."

"Enterprise Boys" Honor Their Former Co-Worker

On Friday evening at No. 5 Fire House a "welcome home" party was tendered Raymond Nevegold, who journeyed from California to spend some time with relatives and friends. Mr. Nevegold helped to dig and build the present building that Enterprise Fire Company has.

The Herman Musical Five provided music, and refreshments were served. Chauncey E. Stoneback, Sr., acted as toastmaster. Ray ("Diamond") Neve-gold was the first speaker and was followed by George Wilkinson who has been away from Bristol for 21 years. Mr. Nevegold and Mr. Wilkinson sang "That Old Gang of Mine."

Other speakers were: Councilmen Frank Pfeiffer, John Wichser and Evan Vandegrift; also ex-councilmen Louis Spring and William Force; remarks were also made by Phillip Winters, J. Russell Edwards and Emil Metzger.

The guest of honor, in his talk, spoke of the very much alive and in-tense feeling that lives in his heart for the "Enterprise boys." He spoke of his wonderful trip across the coun-try from his home in San Diego, and of his work, in the Navy Yard. He spoke also of the principal towns and places near his home, but concluded with the remark that though these places are very fine, Bristol and its places are a little bit better."

DOLINGTON TAKES FIRST PLACE IN RIVER LEAGUE

DOLINGTON, July 15.—Dolington took first place in the Delaware River League here yesterday by scoring an easy 8-1 victory over Willard Leedom's Washington Crossing nine. It was the fourth victory of the second half for the Cornhuskers.

"Chap" Matthews did the twirling for the McGary boys and held the Crossing nine to five bingles. He struck out eight and issued two passes. "Bill" Carroll was solved for ten hits by the Dolington sluggers who were led by Johnson. Johnson had two singles and a triple to his credit. "Kenny" Hill continued to hit safely in every game by connecting for a hit in the fifth frame.

JERSEYTES PUSH THE BRAVES FROM TOP PLACE

Fred Hibbs' Edgely Braves again fell before their nemesis, the Lambertville Top Rock Club. Yesterday the Jerseyites pushed the Braves from first place by counting a 3-1 victory over the Bucks Countians.

It was again the Lambertville club which toppled the Braves from the league lead, the same as the Lambies did in the first half which started the Braves skidding and took them from first place for the remainder of the half.

"Camel" Breslin and "Johnny" Langen did the mound work for the losers while the Sheppardsmen used "Bob" Stout on the hill. Stout held the Braves to four bingles.

BRAVES HIT HARD TO TROUNCE HULMEVILLE

The Braves hit the ball hard to trounce the Hulmeville A. A. club, Saturday, at Edgely in a Delaware River League contest. Eleven safe blows gave the Edgelyites a 9-1 victory. The Hulmevilleites were held to five hits by the youthful "Jake" Prall.

Leo Hibbs with a double, triple, and a single in three official trips to the plate led the Braves with the stick while "Bud" Wright had three out of four. The timely hitting, however, was done by "Jole" Roe. Roe in the second with the sacks loaded cleared them with a long triple to right and scored on an error. In the sixth, again Roe came through in the pinch by singling with two runners on.

Afterbach had two of the losers' five blows, connecting for his first two appearances he had at the plate. Hulmeville was idle yesterday.

NO GAMES TONIGHT

No baseball game will be played in this vicinity tonight. The Bristol Twilight League first half ended Friday night and a meeting will be called tomorrow night for the purpose of drawing up the second half schedule. Tomorrow night, playing will be resumed in the Lower Bucks County League with the following schedule: Newportville at Edgely, and Hulmeville at Hibernians. Bristol A. A.'s game with the Odd Fellows will be played at Edgely, Wednesday night.

Regular use of the Courier classified column is economical and profitable.

Manager's Resignation Results in "No Game"

Morrisville A. A., members of the Delaware River Baseball League, did not play its scheduled games of the week-end. This was the result of the resignation of Paris Allison as manager of the club. Allison resigned Saturday which resulted in the Morrisville team forfeiting to the Washington Crossing nine. Allison's game with Hulmeville yesterday was postponed.

Dispute over a gentleman's agreement caused Allison's decision. He claims that Manager Jack McGary, Dolington, granted him permission to use an ineligible player, Charles "Honey" Seltzer, last Sunday. Before the game, McGary stated that he would not protest the contest. However, after the Morrisville club scored a 4-3 victory, McGary filed a protest with the arbitration board.

The matter will be ironed out at a meeting of the circuit to be held in the office of Neal Nolan, Morrisville, tonight. Meanwhile, Morrisville is looking for a manager and it is claimed that "Pug" Lukens and Ortie Justice will take over the reins.

500 Republicans Rally At Picnic in Solebury Twp.

Valley Forge of our struggle. The No-member elections of 1935 must mark our Yorktown.

Mr. Umstead recalled attending a rally of Republicans at Newtown one year ago, "when we heard Republican candidates pledge themselves to adhere to the tried system of government which during the 40 years of Republican administration had made Pennsylvania one of the outstanding manufacturing and agriculture states of the union. . . . They decried the despotic tendencies of the federal government, and the autocratic regime of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania." Then the records of representatives Yeakel and Stockham, and also of state senator Buckham, at the recent legislative session were mentioned by Mr. Umstead. "They are concrete and undeniable evidences of the fulfillment of those pledges, Bucks County should well be proud of these men."

HULMEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Hopkins and daughter, Irene, are visiting Mrs. Hopkins' brother in Clearfield County.

Guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Afterbach, Sr., were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lynn and family, of Bethlehem. Mrs. Afterbach spent a few days last week at the Lynn home, and returned here with them on Saturday.

At the residence of Christian Tomlinson, Langhorne, this evening, the Methodist official board will hold a business meeting.

TWO HURT AT OXFORD VALLEY

Langhorne, July 15.—Dr. Ernest F. Gifford and his wife, Virginia, of Philadelphia, were injured today when their car collided with a truck at Oxford Valley near here. The couple was taken to Mercer Hospital in Trenton, where both were detained. Doctors say they will recover. The truck driver, C. Parsons, 25, of Lilesville, N. C., was arrested.

Sentence N. Brook Street Man To The County Jail

A sentence of 30 days in the Bucks County Jail, and a fine, were imposed upon Eugene Marone, 21, of New Brook street, at a hearing in the municipal building this morning. Marone was arrested yesterday morning, charged with disorderly conduct.

The charge was brought by his mother, who stated that she had given the young man a smaller sum of money than he had requested, after which he became unmanageable; and she charged that he broke glass in a door, marred the wall-paper, and chased some members of the family.

The hearing was held before Justice of the peace James Guy.

Scenic Panorama Is Offered To Delegates

last bit of territory still in possession of the family of William Penn. From ledge and knob, history says, the aborigine fluttered the smoke signals that called his wandering groups of warriors into concert or advised them of events in the only code known to the early Americans.

Ten minutes from Wilkes-Barre the Susquehanna sweeps between precipitous mountains and then skirts its way about the seven hills that the Indians christened Shickshinny. There can be seen the rock where Queen Esther sacrificed early settlers to the blood lust of the savages. There may be viewed the mouth of the cave of Old Toby, hermit friend of the first Americans, hiding away within view of the mounded towns of the Shawanese and always ready to advise the newly-arrived settlers of any hostile move.

Wyoming Monument raises a shaft of many-hued stones, representative of all the various kinds found in Wyoming Valley, a mute testimonial to the courage of Butler and his men when they withstood at terrible cost the invasion of Tories and Indians in the Revolutionary War, finally to have the remnants of population saved by the arrival of General Sullivan and his troops, saviors sent by General Washington for relief of the beleaguered.

The first coal-hole opens its black mouth at the side of Susquehanna Trail, memorializing the first of all attempts to give into commercial and industrial use the black rock that later took its proper name of anthracite. The river bank at the other side of the road held the chutes that fed the boats which made a tedious journey by river and canal to the metropolitan district of old Philadelphia.

In Wilkes-Barre itself is one of the finest museums in all the state. Every implement, every utensil, every form of clothing in use by the Indians may be seen there, together with fossilized specimens that prove the genesis of coal and the alchemy of Nature that turned tree and shrub and fern, and even fish and flesh, into the deep deposits of anthracite fuel. A model mine will be open to visitors with expert guides to show them about the chambers and explain to them the methods by which coal, at a cost of seven tons of water to every ton of fuel, is brought to the surface and prepared for civilized use.

The old grate of Jesse Fell is still preserved in its original setting in Fell House. There was it proved that with flue draft the smokeless black rock could be made to give heat for comfort and cooking, an experiment that finally proved to eastern America that it had found a long-enduring substitute for the rapidly disintegrating wood.

Newly opened to convention visitors is one of the marvels of highway construction, the Ashley Boulevard. The deepest cuts, the deepest fills, the greatest movements of mountain rock, all these marked construction of the boulevard over a three-year period. Death curves, deadly underpasses, treacherous grade crossings, traffic-defying ravines and mountain gorges, all had to be overcome by engineers. The finished highway will for many years remain a source of wonderment to the traveler.

At the very door of Wilkes-Barre the Bear Creek Boulevard negotiates the first of the Poconos, Wyoming Mountain, winds on through eye-filling scenery to Indian Lake and to Effort Mountain where another of the almost magical enterprises of road construction is to be seen. Only two years ago it was necessary to close off Effort Mountain to travel through the months of winter.

Today a modern concrete road has its worst grade at seven per cent for less than half a mile. By actual test a car may be driven at top speed from beginning to end of Effort road and to the Easton turnpike without the least fear of danger.

All these and more the Pennsylvania State Department of the American Legion offers delegate and visitor to the convention in Wilkes-Barre during the three days of August. Famed Harvey's Lake is eighteen miles away. Luthersland is reached in thirty-five minutes. The almost countless lakes, mountain rivers, trout streams, and resorts of all kinds in both the Blue Hills and Poconos are matters of such easy travel that any designated point may be reached within 30 minutes, allowing as many hours for such enjoyment as the visitor may seek.

"On to Wilkes-Barre" has come to mean "on to the most enjoyable experience of Pennsylvania Legion activities," judged from all the angles of convenience, hospitality, and sight-seeing.

Chesterfield... the cigarette that's MILD
Chesterfield... the cigarette that TASTES BETTER

Chesterfields... that's about all we smoke down in this neck of the woods

Chesterfields are mild—mild but not flat. That's one reason why.

And they have plenty of taste—without being harsh. That's another reason why.

Everybody knows They Satisfy — just about all any cigarette can do.
